UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA MATHEMATICIANS
ATTEND NATIONAL MEETINGS THIS WEEK

MISSOULA--

Several members of the University of Montana Department of Mathematics are attending national meetings of the American Mathematical Society and the Mathematical Association of America this week in Atlantic City, N.J.

Dr. Robert McKelvey, an associate professor, is chairing a session of the board of directors at the Rocky Mountain Mathematics Consortium, a group of mathematicians in the Rocky Mountain area devoted to graduate mathematics. Dr. McKelvey is executive director of the group.

Dr. William M. Myers, a professor, is attending meetings of the committee of the Association on Visiting Lecturers.

Dr. Gloria C. Hewitt, an associate professor, is attending meetings of the Association Committees on Aid to Developing Colleges and the Committee on the Institutes. Dr. Hewitt is one of only several mathematicians to be a member of two committees of the association.

Dr. Michael Fisher, an assistant professor, is reporting on recent results in his research on functional analysis. Dr. Fisher's research is supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation.
